

Two problems I am encountering with my code are a non functional volume slider, and html elements not aligning properly to produce an aesthetically pleasing user interface. I plan on doing unit testing on the volume node to ensure it is working properly without any of the effects, then doing integration tests with individual effects added one by one. Once fixes are made across these levels I will conduct system testing to make sure all nodes are linked and functioning properly.